WHOLESALERS & DISTRIBUTORS

Our appetite aligns with risks that distribute various durable and non-durable goods direct to other distributors or retailers. The wholesaler or distributor should be the "middle-man" between the original manufacturer or supplier and the retailer who sells direct to the consumer. A wholesaler should not assume the manufacturers' product liability.

Key Considerations

- Central station alarms and sprinklered properties are preferred. They may be required based on total insured value, construction type, protection class and occupancy hazard.
- Ancillary Services or Operations should not exceed 25% of revenue for a wholesale/distributor operation:
  - Assembly or repackaging of product
  - Installation, service or repair
  - Leasing or renting without proper risk transfer
- Some risks may not be eligible due to Building Envelope products and individual state Construction Defect legal environments
